ABOUT ROME

Rome is the capital of Italy. With 2,8 M inhabitants, it is the most populous municipality in Italy and the third largest in the European Union after Berlin and Madrid. It is the largest municipality in the European Union and the fifth largest on the European continent, preceded by Istanbul, Moscow, London and St. Petersburg. It is also the European municipality with the largest extension of green areas. Founded according to tradition on 21 April 753 BC by Romulus over the course of its three millennia of history, it was the first metropolis in the West, the beating heart of one of the most important ancient civilizations, which influenced society, culture, language, literature, art, architecture, urban planning, civil engineering, philosophy, religion, law and customs of the following centuries. The birthplace of the Latin language, it was the capital of the ancient Roman state, which extended its dominion over the entire Mediterranean basin and most of Europe; then of the Papal States, subject to the temporal power of the popes; then of the Kingdom of Italy from 1871 to 1946, then of the Italian Republic. It is defined par excellence as the Urbe, Caput mundi and Eternal City. The heart of Catholic Christianity, it is the only city in the world to host an entire state, the enclave of Vatican City. Its historic centre, bordered by the perimeter of the Aurelian Walls, a superimposition of testimonies of almost three millennia, is an expression of the historical, artistic and cultural heritage of the Western European world, so that, in 1980, together with the extraterritorial properties of the Holy See in the city, it was included in the list of UNESCO World Heritage Sites. In 2007, the Colosseum, the symbol of the city, was included among the new seven wonders of the world.
